

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The study was carried for a period of six weeks on the theme “A study on technical analysis of gold in commodity market” at Starfing Pvt Ltd.

The actual problem with investment in the commodity market is that most of the investors do not have a good understanding of the fundamentals and investment strategies, with a major concentration on investment risk and returns. Hence the aim here is to understand the basic techniques involved in investing in the commodity market. Learning the above objective will give you a clear idea of the concept involved in investment decision making.

A study of the market action in the financial markets is a technical analysis. Technical analysts are looking at the market shift that happens daily operations-to-day, week-to-week in graphic form, called graphs, over certain constant time periods. Technical analysis is a way to assess historical security prices to try and determine future likely prices.

Study is helpful in finding out the efficiency and effectiveness on use of technical analysis and also finding out that technical analysis would give the trader a clear idea of the commodity market and the forecast would be accurate.
