

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

A project report on the Analysis of Mergers at Vijaya Bank, Bank of Baroda and Dena Bank for period of six weeks is a knowledgeable and practice exposure to learn about the Industry.

A key topic that plays an important role in understanding and assessing the overall capacity and performance of a given bank is to study analysis of mergers. As a result, this topic was selected as a summer project. The analysis of mergers is a very broad subject and a very important concern in the banking sector and it is impossible to understand all the concepts at one time.

The objective of this report is to summarize the activities I understand as part of my six weeks project at Vijaya Bank. I had to work in coordination with the company's all department's people to get the required information and to know the working environment.

This investigation examinations the utilization of merger procedures and their effect and results so as to furnish non-benefits and their funders with the data they have to direct, support, and advance mergers that advance crucial.

Researchers used financial statements, annual reports and financial documents as baseline data for conducting research activities. The annual report for the last five years has been taken into account for the research.

The project report was carried out at "Vijaya Bank, Bank of Baroda and Dena Bank" with an aim to know the after mergers activities in that banks and it is to analyse the organization and to learn in practical way.
